

I am not in favor of removing the "Do Not Call" list. I believe that people should have the right to not have their daily lives interrupted by annoying and unwanted solicited phone calls. Just as it is illegal to promote unwanted and unapproved solicitation sales pitches via email, snail mail and in public buildings, I believe that the same law should hold true with telemarketers. However, the problem with a Capitalist society is that money talks and all the rest walks. So, I believe that at the risk of losing out on a big payday, the FCC is willing to infringe on the 1st amendment rights of the general public in order to enable and protect those of the select few telemarketers.
